

Ted's walk 1

A 4 mile flat circular country walk via South Kilvington

Introduction

This is a circular field walk from Thirsk Town Centre to South Kilvington and back. It starts from Marage Long Stay car park, national grid reference 429823 (nearby postcode for satnav YO7 1AA).

The walk is 3.7 miles (6km) plus optional 1 mile extension. Ordnance Survey Explorer Map 302, Northallerton & Thirsk, covers the walk but a map is included here.

The walk grade is Easy – it is flat with a few stiles. Allow up to 2 hours.

The walk

Leave the car park by the kissing gate in the North East corner by the Cod Beck (river) and walk through the small picnic site to the metal footbridge over the Beck.

Cross over the bridge and in a few metres turn sharp left to go through a gate into the playing field. Turn right and head for a kissing gate at the far right edge of the field. After this gate, go diagonally left towards another kissing gate about 200 metres away close to the Cod Beck again.

Path by Whitelass Beck

04000 20088024

Go up to a path turning right (leaving the weir on your left), walk through some woodland for about 100 metres and turn right down a slight bank. (If you get to a kissing gate you have gone too far).

Whitlass Beck

The path then meanders through some more woodland, crossing and recrossing the Whitlass Beck several times for about 200 metres before climbing slightly up to the busy Stockton Road.

Cross over the road with care, go right, and turn sharp left after about 20 metres, down a farm track, over the original road bridge crossing the beck with apparently derelict bungalow on your right.

To South Kilvington

Walk on into some more woodland with the beck close on your right, winding through a surprising stand of tall bamboo go through the field gate. Keep close to the beck on your right aiming for a stile and footbridge about 300 metres across the field in the far right corner (the field may have horses in it).

Cross over the beck and go left to follow the field edge on your left through three fields going north, parallel to the bypass, for about 1 km till you reach a road on the outskirts of South Kilvington. Turn left into the village till you pass St Wilfrid's Church about 100 metres on your right.

If you have time it is worth going into the church (with clean footwear!). It is always open and has just been fully restored.

During the restoration a fragment of an Anglo-Saxon cross headpiece fell out of the south wall. This has taken the history of the church back from being originally a 12th century Norman church to the 10th century. The cross fragment can now be seen inside in an alcove in the north wall of the chancel.

A former rector, Revd. Wm. Towler Kingsley who lived to 101yrs old (1815 - 1916), carved much of the wooden furniture, was friendly with both Ruskin and Turner and had many other skills – artist, botanist, pioneer photographer and maker of scientific instruments. An explanatory leaflet is available for a donation.

The porch is also a good shelter for refreshments and a rest.

Turn right then cross over the main road and pass the Old Oak Tree pub, also good for light refreshments or a lunch stop.

Diversion

The original version of this walk went down Mill Lane just beyond the pub and across two bridges over, firstly the mill race and then the Cod Beck, crossing a field and then the B1448 Northallerton Road. Unfortunately the Council Footpaths section had to order the removal of the Cod Beck bridge due to damaged concrete support pillars. There are diversion signs and a map (opposite) advising walkers to continue on the tarmac footpath beyond the pub going first past the Primary school and then the entrance to Thornborough Grange Country Lodge Park.

Continue along the tarmac footpath to the road roundabout where it ends. Then continue on the grass verge which the Council have promised to cut regularly until the bridge is replaced. The verge continues over the Cod Beck (which can be seen down a steep embankment). Large red and white plastic barriers have been placed alongside the road to protect pedestrians. Go as far as the junction where the B1448 joins the A168 road to Northallerton.

Keep left on the grass verge heading now in the direction of Thirsk until you reach the clump of trees on the left where the original route comes out to the road. Cross over this often busy road and go through a farm gate (with an old farm tanker trailer behind it) into the field. This adds about 0.4 miles to the basic original walk of 3.7 miles.

Buddha

Optional extension

Diversion

SOUTH KILVINGTON

THIRSK

Optional 1 mile extension to visit the Statue of Buddha

At this point before you aim for St. Mary's Church you may want a short one mile diversion to visit an idiosyncratic and mysterious landmark- a decorated 3ft high statue of Buddha.

Turn right, not left, walk north on the farm track past Barnaby's bench on the right and three field boundaries on your left. At the point where the path takes a right angled left turn, go down a slight incline for about 100 metres to the next field and hedge junction where you turn right.

Continue now on an upward incline for about 100 metres and by an old gnarled oak tree in the hedge line you will find a 3ft high statue of Buddha which has been decorated by passers-by with ribbons and tokens.

Quite where he came from and who placed him there is a complete mystery but we keep getting asked about him so I have included him in this walk.

To get back to the main walk simply retrace your steps to the crossroad of paths and go straight ahead back to Thirsk, aiming at St. Mary's Church.

Go up a slightly rising farm track into another field – on the Ordnance Survey map Underwood Plantation is shown on your left but this was felled in 2014. At the next open field boundary is a crossroads of footpaths with distant views of the Dales ahead and the Hambleton Hills behind you.

Aim for St. Mary's Church

trees. The footbridge is by the third large tree from the left – the field can be boggy and often has livestock in it.

Once across the footbridge follow the footpath diagonally across a large field to a hedge corner. Bear right through the hedge keeping it on your left. Just before the end of the field, go diagonally right and at the end of the hedge you will see a farm track going between two hedges towards houses and the church.

Carry on past the houses with allotments and then the cemetery on your right till you arrive at Cemetery Lane.

This lane goes left to, and around, the Church reaching the Northallerton Road again. The church is opened by volunteers most days from 10am till 4pm and is well worth a visit in its own right.

On your right is the attractive Georgian Thirsk Hall occupied by our Lord of the Manor, Mr John Bell.

Cross the road, go left and then right into the Marage car park where you will be back at your starting point.
